INTRODUCTION.

The information and data contained in the following tables have been extracted, collated, and arranged with much care, and are derived from a variety of sources.

Among those most worthy of mention are, the files of the State and Navy Departments—the American Archives and State Papers—Clark's, Goldsborough's, and Cooper's Naval Histories, and Niles's Register.

1 have not, however, confined myself to these, but have also examined and compared other American and English Histories, and contemporaneous published accounts; besides, in a few instances, have sought information from those still living.

Among the latter I feel most indebted to Commodore Charles Stewart, Commodore Charles Morris, Chief Naval Constructor J. Lenthall, Consulting Engineer C. W. Copeland, and Peter Force, Esq., of Washington, D. C., each in their respective departments. To each and all of whom, and to any others, who have contributed in any way to afford me information or facilities, I now return my sincere thanks.

This compilation was originally intended to embrace only the Navy proper, but to make it more complete and satisfactory as a work of reference, a List of all the Private armed Vessels, fitted out in the United States, from the earliest period, with their armament, captains, captures, &c., &c., was subsequently added. Some of these were fitted out by private individuals, or companies, and others by States; and many, it will be seen, were commanded by officers who afterwards held commissions in our Navy.

For similar reasons I have added tables embracing the principal Ocean Steamers of the United States, including those carrying the U. S. mail, which, under certain contingencies, may become a portion of the Navy of the United States. Also a list of the Revenue and Coast Survey vessels in 1850, which have since undergone but little change.

UNITED STATES.

UP, SOLD, CAPTURED, OR DESTROYED.

FROM THE COMMENCEMENT, IN 1775, TO 1785, AFTER WHICH THE COUNTRY WAS WITHOUT A NAVY UNTIL 1797.

While in command of Captain E. Hinman, by H. B. M. ships Ariadne and Ceres. Commo. J. Paul Jones claims to have first displayed the Colonial flag on board of this ship, in which he was the 1st Lieut. under Commo. Hopkins, while laying off Philadelphia, in 1775. April 1st. Having been chased on shore by the British squadron. Had only four guns mounted at the time. Under Capt. A. Whipple, composed one of Commo. E. Hopkins's squadron to the W. Indies in 1776.

While in command of Capt. H. Johnston, by H. B. M. Cutter Alert, after an action of 31 hours, her armament being only 4 pds. at the time.

While in command of Capt. J. Olney, by H. B. M. ship Milford, 32 guns. Capt. O. and crew escaped in a schooner, having previously run his vessel on shore and abandoned her.

To prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy. Supposed to have been the first U. S. vessel to receive a foreign salute. The Gov. of St. Eustatia having been subsequently removed for this indiscretion.

To prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy. Composed one of Commo. Saltonstall's squadron, and was at this time commanded by Capt. H. Hacker.

To prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy. Originally named the "Falcon." One of Commo. Saltonstall's squadron. Was one of the first cruisers to put to sea. In company. To prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy. Originally named the "Scorpion." One of Commo. Saltonstall's squadron. Was one of the first cruisers to put to sea.

Probably destroyed as above. Was used principally as a Despatch vessel; and in some accounts is called the "Cruiser."

While in command of Capt. L. Wickes, who, with all on board but the cook, perished. Was the first U. S. vessel of war that visited Europe; carrying out B. Franklin, soon after our Declaration of Independence. Having run on a ledge of rocks, when about to depart in co. with the Alfred, Commo. P. Jones, in an expedition against Nova Scotia.

Supposed to have been destroyed in the Delaware, in 1777, to prevent falling into the hands of the enemy.

See table of captures for the service of the vessels. 46

While in command of Capt. J. Manly, by the Rainbow, 40, Sir Geo. Collier, and brig Victor, after a chase of 30 hours; the H's sailing having been impaired by lightening the ship too much forward.

While in command of Capt. N. Biddle, after an action of 20 minutes with H. B. M. S. Yarmouth, 64, Capt. Viacent; and all but 4, out of 315, perished. The Y. lost 5 killed, and 12 wounded.

While in command of Captain J. Barry, after an action of 9 hours with H. B. M. S. Experiment, 50, Wallace and Unicorn, 22. Having lost 25 killed and wounded, run the ship on shore and descred her. By the enemy. Had never received her armament.

Aug. 14. While in command of Commo. Saltonstall; to prevent capture by the British squadron of 9 sail, under Sir Geo. Collier.

While in command of Capt. J. Nicholson, by H. B. M. S. Iris, 32, (formerly U. S. S. Hancock,) and Gen. Monk, 18, after a gallant resistance of more than one hour, during which she was completely dismantled, and lost 5 killed, and 11 wounded.

By the enemy, under Capt. Henry, R. N. Also 6 small cruisers and 31 merchant vessels. The E. had never received her armament.

To prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy, after Sir Geo. Clinton got possession of the Highlands.

By the British squadron; she having previously struck on the middle ground and lost her rudder. Capt. Nicholson escaped on shore with his papers, and 10 men.

May 12. By the British squadron, at the time the city surrendered to the enemy. Was at this time commanded by Capt. A. Whipple.

Capt. S. Tucker. (Carried John Adams to France in 1778. Was struck by lightning and near being blown up.) While in command of Capt. C. Alexander and aground, by the enemy, whose blockade prevented her from ever getting to sea.

To prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy. Never got to sea.

Supposed to have been destroyed in the Delaware, in 1777. See table of captures.

While under Capt. Conyngham, who had previously made several captures in her, on the enemy's coast.

actually fitted out in one of the enemy's ports.

The Lake Navy, see pages 3 and 4, should come here in the order of dates.

Who loaned her to the Duke of Luxembourg, and the latter hired her to South Carolina for 3 years, for 1 the proceeds of her prizes. She sailed first under Commo. Gillon, in 1781, and made several prizes. In the following year, under Capt. Joiner, she was captured on our coast, after a chase of 20 hours, by H. B. M. frigates Astrea, Diomede, and Quebec. The Indien carried Swedish 36's on her main deck, making her, for this period, a very formidable frigate.

The last vessel retained under the old organization; afterwards converted into an Indiaman, and finally laid up on Pellet's island, opposite Philadelphia.

While in command of Capt. Seth Harding, by a British 74. Was dismasted on her first cruise; and was one of the few vessels of our Navy that carried 12 pounder guns.

Formerly called the " Deane." Was one of the last cruisers at sea in this war, under Capt. J. Manly. Was frequently chased, and made several narrow escapes.

While in command of Capt. Rathburne; the city having previously surrendered to the forces under Sir Henry Clinton.

Capt. Green, in 1782, off Havana, threw overboard her armament to escape from the British squadron, the Alliance in co. See table of captures. While in command of Capt. Simpson. By the enemy's fleet after the city had surrendered. Her armament consisting of 6 pounders.

Note.—The figures following the names of the vessels represent the number that has belonged to the service of this name, in the order of date.

From the commencement, in 1775, to 1785, after which the country was without a Navy until 1797.

Oct. While in command of Capt. J. Young; and has never since been heard of. See, also, table of captures.

While in command of Commo. John Paul Jones, after her encounter with the British frigate Serapis, 44, which she captured, after one of the severest actions on record, about one-half of the whole number engaged, being either killed or wounded. She was formerly an Indiaman, by the name of "Ouras."

These vessels composed the squadron of Commo. J. P. Jones. They were fitted out in France, and only partially officered, and manned, by Americans. The Alliance frigate, was also attached to this squadron, but, owing to the insubordinate conduct of her commander, who was a Frenchman, by the name of Landais, she was of no service.

Was captured by the Providence, 12, Capt. Hacker, and taken into the U.S. service; and when destroyed was in command of Capt. Brown.

To replace the Magnifique, 74, lost in Boston harbor same year. Was the first 74 built for our Navy, and the command awarded to Commo. Paul Jones by a unanimous vote of Congress. Was finally captured by the English.

Formerly the "Gen. Monk," of 20 guns, captured by the American privateer Hyder Ally, of 16 guns, Lieut. J. Barney, U. S. N. Afterwards employed as a packet.

This, to many, will appear more apparent when it is recollected that some of our vessels were armed with three and four different kinds of cannon.

The Washington, for instance, was armed with one 18, one 12, two 9, and four 4 pounders, which alone must have produced confusion during a warmly contested action.

Note.—The column of "Guns," represents the Rate of each vessel, which in nearly every instance is less than the number actually carried; 2d, that of "Men," the Complement allowed each; the actual number on board frequently falling far short of the allowance, owing to the never ending casualties. 3d do. "Tons." The Tonnage of each vessel, estimated upon the rule established by an act of Congress, where ever sufficient data has been found; and in the absence of the latter, the mean of conflicting statements, has usually been taken. The letter P, in the next column, stands for Purchased. The sums in the column of "Cost," include not only the original cost of each vessel, but the expenses of repairs and outlits, to adapt them to the public service at the time.

Exclusive of those captured from the enemy in the battles of the 10th, and 11th, of Sept., 1813 and 1814, which are included in the prize list.

Was the first vessel of war built on the Lakes under the new organization, by Messrs. Bergh & Eckford, and under the superintendence and subsequent command of Lieut. M. T. Woolsey, with an armament of 16 24 pdr. carronades; and afterwards actively employed during the war, under Lieut. Thos. Brown.

during the war, under Lieut. Thos. Brown.

The first Line-of-battle ship do. Was pierced for 100 guns, but never launched. As an exception to all the others, her name still continues on the Navy list, and she is reported in good condition and under cover.

Was nearly completed in one month. Was pierced for 64 guns, but never launched. Was afterwards sold on the stocks.

Only partially built at the conclusion of the war. Was afterwards sold on the stocks.

Was completed and launched in 80 days, and was the largest vessel that we ever had on the Lakes, mounting 62 guns, but subsequently only 58. She became the flag ship of Commo. Chauncey, and took the Lake in 1814.
 Was completed and launched in 34 days. The fourth frigate launched; command given to Capt. Jacob Jones.

Was completed and launched in 63 days, and was the second frigate launched; carried 28 long 24's. Commanded by A. Sinclair and Wm. M. Crane. In the action of Sept. 28 burst one of her guns and sustained considerable injury, with the loss of 27 killed and wounded. Was completed and launched in 63 days, and was the first frigate launched; carried 24 car. 32's. Commanded by Capt. E. Trenchard, and afterwards Wm. M. Crane.

Was not finished until 1814, when Capt. C. G. Ridgely took command of her. Was near being lost in a gale, and obliged to throw overboard 10 guns, on her first cruise.

Was not finished until 1814, when Capt. M. T. Woolsey took command of her. Employed as a Receiving ship, several years after the war.

Was launched in 21 working days after her keel had been laid. Armed with 4 long 32's on circles, and 12 6's in broadside; command given to M'r Comdt. Woolsey. Was afterwards altered to a Rrig, armed with 16 24 pdr. car., and given to Capt. J. D. Elliott, in 1814. While in command of Lieut. R. Winter, and all hands went down with her. Was previously in command of Lieut. McPherson.

While in command of S'! Master Osgood, and all hands but 16 went down with her. Master Osgood, and all hands but 16 went down with her. Master Osgood and all hands but 16 went down with her.

Was commanded by Lieut. Thos. Brown in the affair of the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 4th, and in that of the 6th, by Lieut. Wm B. Finch, when she had her foremast shot away.

While in command of Licut Deacon, by the English squadron. Had previously performed valuable service under Sailingmaster M. P. Mix in several encounters, and was subsequently recaptured by Commo. Chauncey, in the Gen'l Pike, same year; and finally, in 1814, was again captured by the English at Oswego.

In the attack on Kingston burst one of her guns, which wounded her commander, Sailingmaster Arundel, who was subsequently knocked overboard and drowned the same day.

Was at first armed with one long brass nine, on a pivot, and the command given to Sailingmaster Flinn, who was at the taking of York; afterwards, under Lieut. W. Chauncey, she captured the Lady Murray. Was subsequently commanded by Lieut. F. H. Gregory and Sailingmaster Mix. After the war was commanded by Lieut. S. W. Adams, &c.

Was in command of Lt. Elliott in the affair of . The numbers in the column of "Cost, &c.," signify as follows:

^{*} Reported to have been armed with 3 long 12 pounders each, and a complement of 35 men, when captured.

At the conclusion of the war this Squadron, with the exception of two small vessels, and their prizes, (see prize list,) were dismantled and laid up at Erie, and all subsequently condemned, and sold; some having been sunk, with a view to their better preservation.

Note. Independent of the foregoing list of vessels, there has been employed in the service for brief periods, and at different times, several small Steamers and Sailing craft, which have usually been hired or chartered for Special Service, and for the time placed in charge of Officers of the Navy, who have performed valuable service that does not always appear upon the annual Register that is published; among these, I will only mention the Brigs Advance and Rescue, that were loaned to the Government by the Hon. Henry Grinnell, of New York, officered and manned by the Government, and despatched to the Arctic seas, from New York, in search of Sir John Franklin, on the 26th of May, 1850, under the command of Lt. J. De Haven, U. S. N., returning to the same port, in Sept. and Oct. of the following year.

LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

ON THE LAKES.

Exclusive of those captured from the enemy in the battles of the 10th, and 11th, of Sept., 1813 and 1814, which are included in the prize list.

- While in command of Lieuts. Sidney Smith and J. Loomis. By the flotilla of the enemy, aided by a detachment on shore. Received a raking shot, which sunk her in a few minutes. She was afterwards raised, and with her consort, 3 gun boats, and some batteaux, under Capt. T. Everard, R. N., entered Plattsburg Bay, and destroyed the Areal, &c. Finally, became a part of the English squadron, that was subsequently captured by Commo. Macdonough, under the names of the "Chub" and "Finch."
- This Squadron was principally constructed of green timber, at the head of navigation on Otter creek, and, like most of the Lake vessels, hastily put together. As an evidence of this, it is only necessary to say that the timber of which the Saratoga was built, was standing in the forest, forty days previous to her being launched. After the war, this squadron and its prizes were dismantled and laid up at Whitehall, where they were subsequently pronounced unworthy of repair, and sold at public sale. The Galley "Allen," was in commission several years after the war.

Was not in the action of the 11th, of September, 1814. Was originally armed with 4 long 12's and 6 18 pd'r columbiads.

Was not in the action of the 11th, of September, 1814. Was originally armed with 7 long 9's and 2 18 pd'r columbiads.

LAKE ERIE.

ON THE LAKES.

Exclusive of those captured from the enemy in the battles of the 10th, and 11th, of Sept , 1813 and 1814, which are included in the prize list.

- This Squadron was hastily got together, very much like that on Lake Champlain; the two larger vessels having been built by the same Constructors, Adam & Brown, and all obliged to receive their armament, and equipments, from the sea ports. The Lawrence and Niagara, although of light draught, were obliged to be buoyed up by camels over two feet, before they could pass the bar at Eric.
- While in Command of Lieut. Conkling, by a gig and 5 batteaux of the enemy, under Capt. A. Dobbs, R.N., in a night attack, in which the enemy lost Capt. Ratchiffe and one Seaman, and four wounded.
- While in command of SI Master Champlin, by 5 armed boats and 19 canoes, under Lieut. M. Worsley, R. N., in a night attack. The Scorpion, under Lieut. D. Turner, was captured by a ruse de guerre, by the same party, on the following day. The enemy lost a lieutenant and 2 mea, and 7 wounded in the first affair. The Americans lost 3 men, all the officers and 3 men wounded.

While in command of S'l Master McCally, (who was badly wounded,) by the same force which took the Somers, above.

Among the first Gun Boats employed in the Navy, were the six that were loaned to our squadron under Commodore Preble, by the Neapolitan Government, to operate against Tripoli in 1804. These were 25 tons burthen, and each armed with a long 24 pounder. Add to these two Bomb vessels of 30 tons, carrying each a 13 inch mortar, also borrowed from the Neapolitans; and 3 Gun Boats, carrying each a burlength of the latter, or 11 of both, that were employed by our Navy during this war. The first Gun Boats built for the Navy, were under the act of the 28th of February, 1803. Nos. 2 to 10, inclusive, of these, sailed from different ports of the U. S. for the Mediterranean in 1805, and all but No. 7, (as above related,) arrived at Syracuse within 48 hours of each other. These were long, low, and narrow built vessels, 71 feet long by 18 feet beam, generally sloop rigged, and armed with two long 32 pounders, which they carried below during their transit across the Atlantic. Subsequently, this species of force was strongly recommended by President Jefferson for coast and harbor defence; and in 1807, he recommended there should be 200 built for this purpose. To this number, were added 57 in the recommendation of the Secretary of the Navy, (Robert Smith,) in his report of the same year, who estimated their average cost in building at $5,000; and, when armed and equipped, at $11,000 each.

GALLEYS, OR BARGES,

Were employed in River and Harbor defence during our Revolutionary war. Some, that were built and employed by the Colonies, are described as being 60 feet in length, by 18 feet beam, and 5 feet hold, with 7 inches dead rise; and costing, when fully equipped, from $3,000 to $6,000 each; the larger, armed with a long 24 pdr. and a 42 pdr. carronade, and the smaller, with a long 18 pounder, and a 32 pdr. carronade. Under the former name, there were in service, in 1801, "the Charleston, South Carolina, Beaufort, St. Mary's, Savannah, Protector, Gov. Williams, Gov. Davie, and the Mars."

tector, Gov. Williams, Gov. Davie, and the Mars."

In 1814 there were 32 equipped, besales 59 building, in the different ports of the U. S. Many of these were employed on the Lakes; and, at the conclusion of our war with Great Britain, were, like the Gun Boats, generally disposed of at public sale. In 1817, Capt. R. T. Spence reports that he had under his command, on the Baltimore station, 3 Barges, each 75 feet long, 8 Barges, 50 feet long, and 3 Barges, 46 to 49 feet long, all dismantled, but in good order. There were also two more left on the New Orleans station. In 1823 and '4, five, named the "Sand Ply, Gallinipper, Midge, Mosquito, and Gnat," were employed against the Pirates in the West Indies, in the squadron of Commodore D. Porter. These appear to have been the last employed in our Navy, until the commencement of the Mexican war, in 1846, when large open boats, differing both in size and construction, and called

GUN BOATS.

Was driven high and dry in a corn field on White Marsh Island. Was subsequently gotten off, and cruised on the S. coast, under Lts.

Magrath, Murdoch, Fanning, and Biddle.

Magrath, Murroon, Fanning, and Biddle.

Was in the Mediterranean in 1805 and '6, under Lt. R. Izard.

Where the roomd'r died. Returned to Charleston in July, 1806, where the others, similarly employed, returned, and were generally laid up. Where her comd'r died. Returned to Charleston in July, 1806, where the others, similarly employed, returned, and were generally laid up. This small squadron, while at anchor under the command of Lt. Jones, was attacked by 42 Launches and 3 Gigs of the enemy, under Capts. N. Lockyer, Montressor and Roberts, R. N., and finally carried by boarding, after a most obstinate and gallant resistance of one hour and twenty minutes, during which the Americans lost about 100 in killed and wounded, including among the latter, their commanding officer, and the enemy whose fires was estimated at 42 general 1900 were, in their distinct associated as 12 killed and wounded. mounting officer; and the enemy, whose force was estimated at 42 guns and 1200 me, in their official account acknowledge 17 killed, and 77 wounded. Nos. 5 and 23 did not surrender, until several of the enemy's boats had been sunk, and the fire of some of the capunred Gun boats had been turned upon them.

Sailed from the U. S. for the Mediterranean; sprung her mast; returned to New York to refit; sailed again June 20th, and was never afterwards heard from.

Blown up by a hot shot from the enemy's fort, killing her comd'r, Mid'n Dorsey, and 8 men. By some accounts this was Gun boat No. 9. Capsized by a squall, and sunk with 6 of her crew. Was subsequently raised, and one of the last retained in the service at N. Y., 1828. Condemned, and Nos. 14, 16, 17, 20, and 21, reported unfit for service on that station, having been built of green timber.

Wrecked; the commander and 9 of his crew lost.

Was called the "Scorpion," and had been rebuilt in 1812, at Washington. Burnt, to prevent falling into the hands of the enemy.

Sunk in a gale; had previously been condemned. Employed as a Tender, and unworthy of much repair.

Dismantled and laid up; hulls reported sound; were in service as late as 1825. No. 72 not coppered.

Employed as a Tender.

Captured by 8 hoats from the English squadron, armed with 3 guns, and 150 men; after a sharp resistance, and the loss of 7 wounded, and the only gun disabled. The enemy lost 7 killed, and 12 wounded.

Blew up by accident, killing 9 persons. Laid up, and much worm eaten.

Struck by lightning, blew up, and all on board, but 3, perished.

Struck by lightning, blew up, and all on board, but 3, perished.

Hull, spars, and sails, reported in good condition. In July 26th, 1816, fired the shot that blew up Fort Appalachicola, killing about one hundred of its inmates, who were principally Spaniards, Indians, and Negroes.

Hull, spars, and sails, reported in good condition.

Lost in a gale, with all on board. No armament on board.

Captured by a sloop and 10 barges, under a Lieut., after a resistance of 20 minutes, and loss of 1 killed, and 3 wounded. The enemy's loss, about 20 killed and wounded.

Upset and sunk in a squall, all hands saved.

Sold for $1,825, having been sunk in Port Royal Sound the year previous, by a squall, under the name of the schooner Alligator.

While carrying despatches, was fired into and detained by the Erebus 20, Capt. Bartholomew, but subsequently released. Was manded by Lieuts. McCall, J. Paine, &c., and was in service as late as 1823.

Out of the above number, there appears to have been 172 built up to 1809. These were of various dimensions, varying from 40 to 60 feet, in length, and from 50 to 100 tons, burthen; usually sloop or schooner rigged, and armed with from 1 to 5 guns, and manned with from 20 to 50 men. The larger, frequently carrying 2 long 32 pounders, and several howitzers or swivels; and the smaller, one long 18 or 24 pounder pivot gun.

There were doubtless some others, not mentioned in the foregoing list, that were destroyed by their own officers to prevent falling into the hands of the enemy during the last war with Great Britain. Two or three more were lost on the Southern Coast, with more or less of their crews; while others, from the indifferent timber of which they were constructed, must have gone to decay; for, as early as 1809, two were reported as unworthy of repair. The greater number, however, remaining in service at the conclusion of the war with Great Britain, were disposed of at public sale. By the records of the Navy Department, I see that 40 were sold at New York, in 1815, for from $220 to $690 each.

SURF BOATS,

To the number of 150, were ordered to be built in several of the Northern Ports of the U.S., principally for the use of our Army in landing at Vera Cruz and elsewhere. Only about 130 of these were delivered early in 1847. For the convenience of transportation to the Guif, in ships, they were built of 3 sizes, so as to stow in nests.

Both ends were sharp alike; and the weight of the three, or one set, was 15,999 pounds.

Their estimated cost was to average about $450 cach, but owing to the unfavorable time in which they were built, (during the month of January, and 30 days only having been given to deliver them finished to the Government,) they considerably exceeded this sum, and fell but little short of $600 each.

The object for which these were built, rendered them of but little service to the Navy after the Army had obtained a footing in Mexico; and as they were unsuited for the ordinary duties of our men of war, they were necessarily left more exposed to the Northers; so but few ever returned to the U.S.

Mounting usually from 6 to 8 light carriage guns.

Note.—There are now building, in different ports of the United States, Revenue Cutters, which are to be named after the different members of the Cabinet of the United States.

Note.—The system of rating our ships—originally copied from the English—is calculated to mislead, inasmuch as some vessels are rated the same number of guns that they carry, while others carry from 4 to 12 guns more than their rate; and it is not unfrequently the case that the battery undergoes a change, while the rating remains the same. For this reason, I have added to the rate of each vessel in the foregoing table, of the Navy still in existence, the actual number of guns carried, with their calibre, &c.

NOTES.

Fulton, the 1st, was intended more for harbor defence than for a sea going vessel, for which she proved ill adapted on account of her heavy Fullon the 1st, was intended more for harbor detence than for a sea going vessel, for which she proved it adapted on account of her heavy hull, battery, and machinery, and her want of speed and buoyance. She was built upon two hulls, between which her wheel revolved, like some of the present New York Ferry boats. Her outer bulwarks were shot proof, being 5 feet thick, of solid timber, and she was originally intended to annoy the enemy with hot water, as well as shot. With a battery of 26 heavy guns, her maximum draft was about 11 feet, and her speed 5 miles per hour, under steam alone. Fulton 24 and 3d, also wanting in those buoyant qualities that render a vessel comfortable at sea, as well as a safe sea boat; for this reason, it was found necessary to reduce their batteries to 2 guns. No. 2 had also 4 large chimneys, that very much impeded her headway in heavy head winds. The hull, common to both, is of live oak; the boilers, as well as the machinery of the last, are nearly all new, and have thus far proved highly efficient, making better speed than any of the sea steamers.

The Missouri, far twin vessel to the Mississimpl, built in New York in 1841, and hurta Gibraltar in 1843, was also bark riveed, and new, and have thus far proved highly efficient, making better speed than any of the sea steamers.

The Missouri, (a twin vessel to the Mississippi,) built in New York in 1841, and burnt at Gibraltar in 1843, was also bark rigged, and spread 19,000 square feet of canvass. Her machinery was designed by Engineer C. W. Copeland, and constructed at the West Point foundry. An experiment made by Engineer G. L. Thompson to turn her smoke into the wheel-houses, proved a failure.

Water Witch No. 3, having worn out her old boilers, they were replaced by the "Dundonald" or "Montgomerry" Patent Tubular boilers, which, after a variety of alterations, proved failures, and were confounded by a board of Engineers.

Water Witch No. 4, has the old engines of No. 3, with Lamb and Summers's patent boilers and feathering wheels, both weighing 22 tons, and from an experimental two terminals from an experimental two terminals and summers's patent boilers and feathering wheels, both weighing 22 tons, and, from an experimental trip, promises good speed

Note.—The table of Nominal Horse Power is estimated upon Mr. Watt's rule, given in Bourne's Treatise on the Steam Engine; and in most every instance, falls far short of the actual power that the engines work up to, say from 1-3d, to 6-10ths.

Note.—The crews of the Liverpool and New York, or Collina's line of Steamers, average about 130 each. Their Hulls weigh about 1,380 tons; and, at mean draught, displace about 3,724 tons each. By a comparison of the above data, with the mean performance of the Arctic, in twelve voyages across the Atlantic, or six each way, as per article in the Franklin Institute Journal, by Engineer B. F. Isherwood, U. S. N., it appears, that the average hourly consumption of (A.) coal was 7,978 lba, or 85; tons per 24 hours; and the average pressure of steam 15.85, cutting off at 4.4, number of revolutions 14,028, developing 9,290 horses power, and making a apeed per hour, of 11.666 geographical miles, of 6,0825 feet per mile; or 13.439 statute miles, of 5,280 feet per mile. The voyage from New York to Liverpool requiring, on an average, 7,738 less revolutions, and 31½ tons less of coal than in coming from Liverpool to New York; while the consumption of coal in the Easterly passage is actually greater, by 221½ lbs. per hour, than in the Western. A difference that is no doubt owing to the action of the Gulf Stream, and the prevailing westerly winds.

The crews of the Chagres and New York (Georgia) line of Steamers, average about 112 each.

The crews of the N. Orleans and New York (Windfield Scott) line of Steamers, average about 70 each.

The crews of the Havre and New York (Humboldt) line of Steamers, average about 90 each.

Note.—The declaration of War, in 1812, found the Navy of the United States composed of only 18 sea-worthy vessels, exclusive of a few small Schooners, and Gun Boats—7 of the former, only, being Frigates.

[|] By one account, this vessel carried 2 long 9's; and, by another, 2-18's, at this time.

§ A British account says that a party-had been left on shore; reducing their crew, in this action, to 72 souls.

¶ Another account increases the number to 446. While the British account reduces it to 377.

McCall carried the prize into Portland. 2 long 24%, 1 do. 18, 6 do. 12%, 8 9%, 1 24-pdr. car., and 1 18-pdr. car. Total, 19 Guns. All, but the Hunter, carrying a pivot Gun. While, in the American squadron, all the Guns, excepting these in the Lawrence and Niagara, were pivot Guna, and the vessels carrying them were without bulwarks. One Gun, on board of the Ariel, burst carly in the action, and the carronade on board of the Caledonia turned a somerset down the hatchway. The American squadron had the weather gage; and, the wind being light, the Lawrence, which led, suffered severely from the enemy's fire before she closed sufficiently to use her carronades; and after she became minimageable, Commo. Perry went on board the Detroit, and, for the first time brought her into close action; soon after which the enemy surrendered. At the time of going into action, there were 116 men in the American squadron on the sick list. The number of killed and wounded of the enemy are taken from their own returns.
39	Licut. Wm. Hutchinson.			Sept. 23, 1813	Atlantic Ocean.

^{*}The British and American accounts of this affair do not differ materially; but in many of the more important actions, that follow, there are greater discrepancies; the British accounts, in nearly every instance, overrating the American force engaged, and underrating their own; carrying out the same principle in regard to the number of killed and wounded, the duration of the action, &c. To endeavoito reconcile these conflicting statements, or even to quote all the authorities I have examined upon each subject introduced, would be contrary to the original design in publishing these Tables.

† As this was the first Frigate action during this War, and for this reason, perhaps, the subject of more varied comment and criticism than those that followed, I take this occasion to refer to a detailed history of the affair, which has lately been published in the May and June numbers of "Putnam's Monthly," for 1853, under the head of "Old Iconsides," which, I understand, will also reappear in the revised edition of Cooper's Naval History, now publishing.

REMARKS.

Our treaty stipulations with these powers having been disregarded for many years, war was finally declared by the United States against Algiers, March 34, 1815, and the Squadron here named was despatched to the Mediterranean under Commo. Decatur.

When the foregoing captures followed, and negotiations cusued, resulting in a Treaty of Feace with the Dey of Algiers June 30, 1815, and with the Best was of Tripoll August 9, 1815.

When the above prizes were given up, all prisoners released on both sides, the Bey of Tams made to pay $16,000, and the Bashaw of Tripoll made to pay $35,000, to the United States.

Commo. Decatur despatched the Epervier, Lt. J. T. Shubrick, to the United States with the liberated captives, and M'r Comdt. Lewis as bearer of the above mentioned treaties. She saided July 19, 1815, passed the Rock of Gibraltar on the 14th, and was reported to have been seen on the 8th of August in Latitude 33°.4 N., and Longitude 61°.18 W., just previous to a heavy gale; since which nothing has been heard of her.

These embrace a few more captures than I find any where upon record, but perhaps not all. Independently of which may be added a number of places that have been taken in the South Seas, East Indies, and elsewhere, at different periods by our men of war, in self defence, or to punish lawless aggressions, in which either Prates or Savages have generally been the principal sufferers. If to these are added the captures which have at various times been made of vessels employed in the slave trade, (which by our law is declared piracy,) it will be seen that our small Navy has, in peace as well as war, performed valuable services, and is entitled to all the gratitude that the countries has been well as the services and is entitled to all the gratitude that the countries has been well as w try has bestowed upon it.

^{*} The piratical band subject to the control of the notorious pirate, Jean Lafitte, was supposed to have numbered about 1000 men, with some 16 vessels.

In 1813, Gov. Claiborne offered a reward of $5,000 for Luftte's head, which the Rover responded to by offering $50,000 for that of the Governor.

Both the Americans and English were repulsed in their first attacks upon thein at their rendezvous on Earataria Island, before their final defeat and dispersion by the force under Commodore Patterson.

Capt. W. H. Percy, of H. B. M. ship Hermes, and Lt. Col. Ed. Nicholls, commanding H. B. M. forces in Florida, had addressed letters to Lafitte in August, 1814, urging him to place himself under the protection of Great Britain, offering him a free pardon, the rank of captain in the English service, and land for himself and followers at the conclusion of the war, but all to no effect. He and his companions preferred assisting the United States against Great Britain in the battle that soon after followed at New Orleans, and it was in consideration

Supposed to have been the same party that had previously gained some advantages over an armed English force, and that had finally boarded and captured an Austrian Brig of war of 10 guns.

of their fidelity and courage on that occasion, that they were honorably noticed by General Jackson, and received a full pardon from President Madison on the 6th of February following.

About 3 years subsequently to the battle of New Orleans, Lafitte turned pirate again, making Galveston Island, on the coast of Texas, his rendezvous, and the Gulf of Mexico the scene of his operations. Soon after he was overtaken by a severe gale, and many of his vessels foundered. One was weeked on our coast, and another, (a schooner of 2 guns and 50 men, commanded by one of his accomplexes by the name of Lafage, with a prize in company.) was captured by the U.S. Revenue Cutter Alabama, after a sharp resistance, and carried into four of the control of the second of the second of the control of the control of the second Bayo St. John, where the survivors were tried, condemned, and executed.

Lafitte, who had heretofore warred principally against the Spanish flag, became exasperated by these reverses, and concentrating his energies for a final struggle, next put to sea in 1821, in the "Pride," a large Brigantine, armed with 16 guns, and manned with 116 men, to war against the world.

one account states that, a few days subsequently be encountered an English sloop of war; a desperate action ensued, in which it was reported that both Commanders were killed, and only 16 left alive on board of the Pirate, which was finally carried by boarding, and afterwards taken to Jamaica, where the remaining 16 were tried, condemned, and 10 of them executed, and the remaining 6 pardonol. This was probably one of his accomplices; for from another more recent, and apparently authentic account, it appears that after having abandoned his rendezvous at Galveston early in 1821, agreeably to the desire of our Government, (as expressed through its agent, Lt. L. Keaney, in the U. S. Brig Enterprise,) he shifted his cruising ground to the southern coast of the Gulf, made the Island of Margarita, near the Oronoco, a place of rendezvous, and finally ended his days in Sisal, Yucatan, in 1826.

Is reported to sail best when from 6 to 20 inches by the stern; retaining her original spars, her lower masts are unusually taunt. Under favorable creminstances has logged 10 knots on a wind, and 13 knots five; "Behaves well, is a good sea boot, and sails fast, 1837." During her last cruise in the Pacific averaged 140 knots per 24 hours, for 400 consecutive days. Was besten by the St. Lawrence and Cumberland in the Mediterranean. "Is sure in stays, stiff under canvass, inclined to gripe, and its hard on her cables: 1849 and 52." It has been recommended to dispense with 10 tons of ballast, the poop and topgollant for castle; to shorten the lower masts, and to dispense with a tiller on the gun deck, which interferes with the working of stern guns. Has logged 11 knots onn wind; 10½ knots under double recefed topsails; and 13 free. Steers and works like a pilot boat; has very little rolling motion; is easy on her spars and cables, and excepting in a head sea, (when she pitches deep.) is comparatively comfortable in rough weather. Rode out a heavy norther off Vera Cruz, when some 30 sail of merchantmen parted their cables and went on shore. Is not sufficiently weatherly to be safe on a lee shore in heavy weather; but her other general quadities will per-haps compare favorably with any vessel of her class that has yet been built. "Requires all her ballast, and can very well dispense with her riding tier of casks, taking provisions instead. Pennimore Cooper, in vol. 1, No. 5 and 6 of "Putnam's Monthly;" for 1853, which will also appear in the next edition of Mr. Cooper's Naval History. Her log book of 1809 shows a speed of 13½ knots per hour, going free under topgallant sails; but by common report she enjoys an enviable reputation, which has no doubt been enhanced by the able manner in which she has usually been commanded, and the good fortune that has always attended her. She has always been heavily sparred, and from her peculiar build, (tumbling in above the water,) has furnished her masts less angular support from her	Boston Boston Boston Boston Tripoli Tripoli Syraeuse Lisbon

JNITED STATES, 44 Length - 175 feet. Beam - 436 " Hold - 143 " Ballast - 140 to 75 tons. Water - 57,000 gallons. Provisions - 6 months.	Maximum draft 23½ feet; best sailing trim varying from 20 to 30 inches by the stern. Has logged 10½ knots on the wind and 13 free, being a fraction less than may be found credited to the Constitution, which she very much resembles in other particulars. Injured her false keel and rudder braces when first launched in July, 1797, and was obliged to be hove down for repairs. May, 1813, in Long Island sound, was struck by lightning, which passed down the mainmast, and into the ward room, without serious injury to any one. In a trial trip with the United States Frigate Congress, (the latter's 1st cruise on the Coast of Brazil in 1843), there was searcely any perceptible difference in the sailing of the two ships on a wind, but in going dead before the wind the United States had the advantage. Reported to have beaten all of the British feet on a wind in the Mediterranean in 1834. In her last cruise in the Pacific in 1844, Comdr. Stribling reports that she is one of the most weatherly ships, and the best sen boat, that he has ever sailed in—rolling deep but easy, and with very little strain on the masts and rigging. And during her last cruise; 1846 to 1849, she is reported "slow but sure in stays; steers and sails well; rolls casy, (75 tons of ballast only,) but rides heavy at her anchors." Capt. Gregory, in comparing her performance in 1816 and 1847 with that of the Raritan from 1843 to 1845, says, there is no material difference in the two ships, excepting in heavy weather; and when lying to, &c., the latter is not so weatherly. Maximum draft 22; best sailing trim varying from 18 to 26 inches by the stern. Performed remarkably well on her 1st cruise, particularly after being relieved of some of her ballost; sailing 10 knots on a bowline and 12 free, with ease. Returning to the U.S. the steps of her masts were altered, since which she has never sailed so well. On her 1st cruise to the West Indies, and 2d to the Mediterranean, with iron tanks, and about 140 tons of ballast, she was regarded as a fair sailer, but not weatherly; rolled deep, but easy; pitched heavily in a head sea, and was very hard upon her helm, which 4 men could not always control, aided by the usual purchase of wheel ropes. During her last cruise, with only 90 tons of ballast, she was reported "stiff, steers well, stays badly, wears quickly. In smooth water, and sailing within 6‡ points of the wind, makes fully ½ point leeway." And in sailing was beaten by the St. Louis and Perry. Her launching draft was, forward 12 feet 6 inches, aft 16 feet 6‡ inches. With lower masts and bowsprit draft was, forward 13 feet, aft 16 feet 8 inches. With bollest and rudder hung draft was, forward 13 feet, aft 16 feet 8 inches. Equipped for sea draft was, forward 20 feet, aft 92 feet. No. 2. Length - 164 feet. Hean - 182 (64 Hallast - 40 tons. Water - 32,000 gallons.	Maximum draught 20.3 feet; best sailing trim varying from 4 to 8 inches by the stern, when deep, and on an even keel when light. Reported to have logged 11 knots per hour on a wind. "Slow, but sure, in stays, invariably getting stern board; is sufficiently stiff; lies to well; is easy, and remarkably dry; requires a strong breeze; bottom supposed to be foul.—1839." "Fast ship going free, and fair on a wind; steers and stands up well under her canvass; is easy and dry.—1810." "Dull sailer going free, and always in light winds, but dry; rolls easy; is stiff, and inclines to gripe.—1845." On her passage to Ireland, was officered and manned by volunteers out of the service. Carried out about 12,000 barrels of provisions.	Norfolk New York Hampton Roads Pensacola New York Norfolk Boston
Baltast - 40 tons. Water - 32,000 gailtons. Provisions - 5 months.	Rebuilt in the Dry Dock at Brooklyn, New York, in 1852, and given a battery of 22 heavy guns. Her poop deck taken off; bulwarks reduced; masts, yards, and sails increased; the foremast stepped a little further aft; the same quantity of ballast, and about 18 inches more keel given her. Has since made a very quick passage to Madeira, and her commander reports very favorably of her general performance.	Hampton Roads Hampton Roads Porto Praya New York Portsm'th, N. H.
SARATOGA, 20	Maximum draft 16.8 feet; best sailing trim varying from 10 to 16 inches by the stern. Originally fitted with a grating spar deck, weighing 5 tons; is reported to perform better without it. "Is stiff, but not weatherly; slow, but sure, in stays. Steers unusually well, and is easy on her spars and cables."—1843. Having been docked after her return from this cruise, 6 sheets of copper were found to have been knocked off her bottom. "Seads well, and rides easy at her enchors; stays and lies to badly; her battery too heavy; must not properly supported, and ship I consider unsafe on a lee shore, or lying to in a gale.—1846." "Fair, not weatherly; very stiff; steers and lies to well; putches deep, and squats very much in a sea way.—1848." "Sails and steers well, and is weatherly; stands up remarkably well under canvass, and rides extremely well at her anchors; can dispense with all her ballast.—1849." Has logged 10 knots on a bowline, and 13 free.	Portsmouth New York Norfolk Pensacola Rio Norfolk New York Norfolk Norfolk
PORTSMOUTH, 20 Length - 151,10 feet, Beam - 38 t Hold - 172 Water 2t to 25,000 gallons, Provisions - 6 months.	Originally 4 tons of ballast, which was, on the second cruise, increased to 25. Maximum draught 175 feet; best sailing trim varying from 9 to 14 inches by the stern. Has legged 11.6 knots per hour on a wind, and 14 free. Carries her guns 6 feet above the water. "Excellent, whether sailing, steering, working, seudring, lying to, or riding at anchor in a sea way. Sailed 63.19 miles this cruise. Was 496 days at sea, averaging 128 miles per day.—1848." Sometimes got stemboard in stays, which was attributed to her carrying the same curvess on her fore as on her mainmast; the latter was subsequently increased, upon the recommendation of Comdr. M, without having (according to Comdr. A's report) froduced the desired result. With this single exception, the latter reports: "She possesses the finest qualities of any ship I ever sailed in; rolls as easy as a cradic, and stands up under her canvass like a church; sails very fast, and could dispense with 15 tons of ballast." Also recommends that her mainmast be shifted 3 or 4 feet further aft.	Portsmouth Norfolk Valparaiso Boston Monrovia New York Porto Praya Boston
JAMESTOWN, 20 Length - 183.6 feet. Ream - 26.2 is Hold - 17.3 is Bullast - 51 tons. Water - 25.000 gallons. Provisions - 6 months.	Meximum draught 18 feet; best sailing trim varying from 6 to 18 inches by the stem. Reported to have sailed 11 knots per hour on a wind, and 13 free. "Excellent under almost every variety of sail and weather, but wanting a little more stability.—1846." In a trial trip with the Portsmouth this cruise, the general sailing qualities of the two ships were very much the same; both beating the Southampton, Vorktown, and Truxtun with ease. On her passage with supplies to Ireland, experienced severe gales, and behaved remarkably well. "Very weatherly; works well; rolls easy, but pitches fearfully; inclines to gripe; requires a good breeze and low sail.—1818." During this cruise the masts were uprebt, (having previously raked aft); several alterations recommended; and, previous to departing on her last cruise, her masts and yards were reduced. "Steers and works readily, rolls casy, and pitches heavily, and is very easy on her cables.—1847." "Steers well, but sails and works badly, and makes a great deal of lee way; on a wind, under the most favorable circumstances, never makes more than 8 knots per hour; rolls and squats freadfully, and requires low sail. Her best trim for sailing is probably by the head.—1849." Previous to this cruise, her lower mast had been shortened several feet. Carried the same sail on the fore that she did on her mainmast, previous to this cruise. Has since undergone some alterations; and, by last reports, performs "equally well, with a difference of from 20 inches to 3 feet by the stern, and without any ballast on board. Steers and lies to well, and works as well as the average of ships; stands up well under her sails; rolls deep, without straining her hull or rigging. She has logged 16 knots per hour on a wind, and 13 free. Beat the Decatur in a trial on the wind. I do not regard the Albany as very weatherly, but, under all circumstances in which I have seen her, (236 days at sea in the West Indies,) as superior to most ships.—1852." VINCENNES, 18	Maximum draft 16½ feet; best sailing trim varying from 14 inches by the stern when light, to 24 inches when full; has logged from 9½ to 10½ knots per hour on a wind, and 11 free. "Excellent under reduced sail on a wind; in a head sea, and with a strong brecze, can compete with any vessel. Lies to, steers and works well, and is easy on her spars and cables"—1898. With alight battery mad spar deck in the Exploring Expedition, her performance was very much as above. Rode at single anchor one night on San Francisco Bar in a heavy sea that broke over the spar deck of the ship. With a battery of 48-inch guns and 16 32s, (her spar deck having been taken off.) during her last cruise in the Pacific, in which she was 556 days at sea, and sailed 62,520 miles, her commander reports that she had behaved well under all circumstances; was a good sea boat; not very weatherly, and exceedingly wet when close-hauled in a fresh breeze; he thinks her battery too heavy for her, causing her to work and leak nbout one inch per hour in heavy weather, and that she requires no bullast. She has since been given a spar deck again, and a battery of 48-inch guns, 432s, 124, and 2 brass 12s, howitzers, to accommodate her to the service upon which she is employed. FALMOUTH, 18	Maximum draft 16 feet; on her 3d cruise, left port 5 inches by the head, when she was reported to have worked and sailed well; subsequently, and during the same cruise, all of her ballast was landed in the Pacific, when she drew 14 fect on an even ked, and was reported to have "sufficient stability; very weatherly, and in all respects a very safe and comfortable ship, sailing 10 knots per hour on a wind, and 12 free." During this cruise the foremast was raked more aft than usual. "Good under most circumstances, but a very dull sailer before the wind, rolling deep but ensy; bears her canvass well, and is a comfortable sea boat—1843." "Will make a better store ship than cruiser—1852." This remark is applicable to some others. VANDALIA, 18	Maximum draft 16½ feet, and best sailing trim about 2 feet by the stern. "Sails and works badly; easy in her motion and upon her cables; generally carries a lee helm, and is not weatherly. Scudded well in a violent pampero: 1831." Was armed with 24 gons at this time; weight, exclusive of carriages, &c., about 35 tons; carried her water in casks, and although with 26 tons of ballast on board, was reported as wanting very much in stability. Lost 3 of her anchors, by breaking, in the Bay of Sisal, in 1835. Having been lengthened thirteen feet in 1818, she sailed on the following year with 11 tons of ballast, 25,000 gallons of water, six months of salt provisions, and 8 months of bread, which she stowed very well, with about the same maximum draft. Reported as sailing best when about 9 inches by the stern. "Steers easily, stays quickly, wears slowly, is very weatherly, would be stiff enough without ballast; performs remarkably well under all circumstances, but in a sea way pitches heavily and is very wet; 1852." During this cruise was 505 days at sea. CYANE, 18	The prize ship of this name was broken up in Philadelphia in 1836. Maximum draft 16½ fect; speed 9½ knots per hour on a wind, and 11½ knots free; sailing best when about 20 inches by the stern, or varying between 19 and 23 inches, according to the load draft. "Very stiff; (landed some of her ballast;) pitches heavily, but rolls easy, and is comparatively a dry and comfortable ship; works well, but carries a strong lee helm. (Recommends several alterations, the most important of which is the removal of the steps of all the masts about once their diameter further aft:) 1838."	Boston Mahon. Norfolk. Callao Norfolk. Monterey. Norfolk. Norfolk. Norfolk. Norfolk. Norfolk.
WARREN, 18	Capacity, draft, &c., not differing materially from the other Sloops of the same dimensions. Was originally over ballasted. General sailing qualities not so favorable as several of the S'oops already mentioned, of similar dimensions. In the West Indies, in 1836, was reported to "sail best when trimmed by the head.") Was converted into a Guard Ship at Montercy, during the Mexican War; afterwards fitted out and manned to cruise until the close of the wer, when she was laid up in San Francisco Bay, and converted into a Receiving Ship for recruits and stores, and placed in charge of a Lieutenant of the Navy.	Boston
DECATUR, 16	Maximum draft 15½ feet; maximum speed 9½ knots per hour on a wind, and 11 fee; sailing best when trimmed about 10 inches by the stern. Sailing in company, generally beat the Potomac, Concord, Marion, and Enterprise; likewise beat the Delaware on a wind, under double-reefed topsails, but was beaten by her at all other points. "Is stif; sters, vers, and stays well urder all circumstances; hes to well; rolls very deep, but brings up easily.—1842." "Steers and works well; rolls deep and easy; rides heavy at her anchors in a sea way; requires low sail and a good breeze.—1845."	San Francisco. Sancelito

DALE, 16	Maximum draft 15½ feet; maximum speed 10 knots per hour on a wind, and 13 free. "Sails best on the port tack, with the helm a-weather, and when about 10 inches by the stern. On the starboard tack carries lee helm.—1848" "Is very stiff, steers, stays, and lies to well.—1850." "Sters, stays, and lies to well; is very stiff; rolls quick and deeply, and is very easy on her masts and rigging; also in ruling at anchor in a sea way. I would call her a fair sailer under all ercumstances. Requires all her ballast, (i. e. 19 tons.) 252 days at sea—sailed 28,313 miles.—1851." DOLPHIN, 10	Maximum draft 13 feet; do. speed 10 knots per hour, within 5½ points of the wind, and 10.6 free, Best sailing trim varying from 2½ feet to 3½ feet by the stern. "Good, very stiff, and weatherly, 1838." "Answers her helm quickly, lies to like a duck, and is easy, except in a short sea. Outsailed the Independence Razee, and Fairfield, sloop of war, on a wind; the best and safest vessel that I have ever sailed in—1839." "Seudded well in a terrific gale and a heavy sea around Cape Horn; found her a dull sailer; stayed the foremast forward one inch in the partners, which improved her very much—1851." Considers her present Brigantine rig as very objectionable; also her steering apparatus as obsolet and dangerous; recommends the full rig in place of the former, and the modern apparatus in the place of the latter. ERIE, 4	Maximum draft 17.10 feet; maximum speed 9 knots per hour on a wind, and 12 knots free; requiring to be trimmed about 6 inches by the stern. "Steers, works, and seeds well; rolls deep, but with little strain upon her masts and rigging; sails well when heavily pressed: 1843." Surveyed and sold at public sale, in Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 26, 1850, for $13,000.	Boston
FREDONIA, 4	Without ballast and with a full cargo, maximum draft 20% feet, and can carry 1100 tons of cargo. Reported to sail best on an even keel. In her 1st cruise, during a heavy gale, she is reported to have rolled and labored very much; rides heavily at her anchors, and steers badly when light; liea to well, requires her close reefed main topsail. 356 days at see; sailed 39,414 miles: 1851.	Boston Anton Lizardo New York Norfolk New York
SUPPLY, 4	Maximum draft 15 feet, and when foll 16½ feet; maximum speed 10 knots per hour on a wind, and 12 knots free; sailing best when from 6 to 10 inches by the stern. "Good under all ordinary circumstances; 214 days at sea; steers, sails, works, and lies to well; rolls easy, and is very stiff under canvass: 1847–8." As above. "311 days at sea; rolls deep, and in scudding requires sail to keep her ahead of the sca; holds a good wind, and head-reaches well: 1852."	Boston New York St. Jean D'Acre. [Norfolk Norfolk New York New York

Note.—The official reports and log books have furnished most of the data contained in these tables. As might be expected, from a variety of conflicting causes, the reports of different cruises seldom agree in every particular in regard to the same vessel; I have, therefore, in all cases where there is a discrepancy, given the result of each, with the date annexed. Neither from the reports nor log books have I been able to trace a full and continuous history of any one vessel in the Navy; consequently I have been unable to indicate every change that has taken place, which, in itself, may have effected the general qualities of the vessel. Besides a thorough overhauling and repair which most vessels undergo after a long cruise, it is well understood that an active cruise requires a complete renovation about every eight years, if built of white oak, and 12 years, if built of live oak, when a variety of changes usually follow, sometimes in the quantity, and at others in mode of stowing the ballast, water, provisions, stores, &c., &c. The battery is frequently changed; a poop deck, or topgallant forecastle, frequently added or substracted; spars lengthened or shortened; stayed forward or aft; sails increased or diminished, &c., &c., any one of which changes may materially affect the sailing qualities of a vessel as all sailors know. Among these changes I will further mention that of substituting chain for hemp cables, and the general introduction of inataks, in the place of woodcn casks, for carrying water, &c.; which has had the effect of increasing the stability of the ship and rendering less ballast necessary.

DURING THE WAR WITH GREAT BRITAIN, FROM 1812 TO 1815.

Four prizes were sent to Tunis, three to Tripoli, one ransomed, one a cartel for prisoners, and several Maltese were released; sold one for $30,000.

Captured, July 16, 1812, off Cape Sable, by the Spartan Frigate.

Captured, July 18, 1812, off Cape St. Mary's, by the Spartan Frigate. Had only been commissioned 7 days.

One carrying 16 and another 8 guns. Fought a severe night action. Was finally chased on shore, in Wells' Bay, May 19, 1813, by the Rattler and Bream—the crew escaping.

One carrying 12 and another 8 guns. Burnt one. Was finally captured, Feb. 23, 1814, when three months out, by the Epervier Sloop-of-war.
Four carrying 10 and two of 8 guns. Destroyed eight, converted two into cartels, sent one to Spain, one to Fayal; two were recaptured.

See table of Captures.

This cruiser, like many others, was several times commissioned under different Captains and armaments.

Two earrying 8 and one of 6 guns. Destroyed three; converted two into eartels. One, a Privateer, the Brig Pallas, of 8 guns and 21 men, resisted 20 minutes.

One earrying 12 and 1 of 8 guns. Converted one into a cartel. One, a packet, was divested and ransomed for $8,000. Was captured July 12, 1813, in Ocracoke Sound, by the boats of the English squadron, after a resistance and final descrition of the vessel.

Captured by the Zephyr, in 1813. A schr. of this name, of 2 guns and 12 men, Capt. Hall, was commissioned in Norfolk, Oct. 25, 1813. Captured by the boats of the English squadron in Chesapcake Bay, April 3, 1813, having first been chased on shore and abandoned.

The Mary & Eliza was chased on shore and burnt.

One a Packet, of 12 guns. The A. was finally captured by the Plumper Brig-of-war, in the Bay of Fundy, July 17, 1812.

Lost at sea, 1814 or '15. Was last commissioned Nov. 11, 1815.

Captured by the boats of the English squadron, in Ocracoke Inlet, July 12, 1813, after a sharp resistance.

Captured in 1812.

Captured by the Barbadoes, 16, in company at sea, March 8, 1815, after an action of one hour and a half. Had 1 killed and 4 wounded. Enemy 1 killed and 3 wounded. 22 men absent from the A.

On her passage to France, 1812.

Ransomed both-one a Transport ship.

Cut out one vessel from a harbor in Martinique, with a cargo of molasses.

Sent both prizes in.

DURING THE WAR WITH GREAT BRITAIN, FROM 1812 TO 1815.

Captured by the Nymphe, May 12, 1813. Threw overboard 2 guns in the chase.

One prize was formerly the O. H. Perry schooner; one, prize ship, was lost on Charleston Bar. This cruiser was missing at the close of the war.

Was captured by the Wolverine in 1813.

One given up to the prisoners.

Captured the sloop Traveller, cargo of Dry Goods, Wine, &c.; sent her to Machias.

Had a fight with a brig of war; captured 8 vessels out of one flect, one formerly the Shadow, privateer of Philadelphia; destroyed 4.

In one instance called the "Leander," of Providence.

Destroyed 13, ransomed 3 for $60,000, 1 cast away. Finally captured by the Granicus off C. Spartel, December 2, 1814, after a chase of 11 hours, and loss of one gun. An East Indian valued at $2,000,000 recaptured, first divested of $60,000. Probably the same vessel as above. By some accounts a vessel of this force and name sailed out of Boston, and was captured.

Prize armed with 8 guns. The cruiser was soon after captured by the Hope Tender, August 13, 1812, and sent into Halifax.

One a privateer of 2 guns and 30 mcn; 1 sent in worth $60,000; 1 chased on shore and destroyed; 1 ransomed, and 2 given up to prisoners.

Sent into Marblehead, where, according to some accounts, the cruiser belonged.

Destroyed and carried into L'Orient, a cargo valued at $400,000; also commissioned out of Massachusetts, and sometimes called "Lyon."

Captured by the Promethcus, 16, at sea, March 8, 1814.

Captured by 9 boats of the squadron, armed with 200 men, in Chesapeake bay, February 9, 1813; the captain and 18 killed or wounded; the enemy 6 killed or wounded.

Destroyed 15, and despatched a brig for the U. S., which was subsequently wrecked on the coast of Florida.

Captured by the Circe, May 4, 1813, after a chase of 19 hours, and loss of 4 guns by the privateer, which was 40 days out, and no prizes.

Missing at the close of the war.

Captured by boats of the British squadron in Chesapeake bay, April 3, 1813, with 3 other cruisers.

Sent the prizes to France; was missing at the close of the war; supposed to have been captured by the Bacchante.

Sunk ship Sir Edward Pellew, of 2 guns and 19 men; destroyed 3, sent in a brig of 12 guns, and 1 of 8 guns; missing at the close of the war.

This cruiser was commissioned in December, 1813; her tonnage 252.

3 armed with from 2 to 14 guns; carried the latter by boarding; a brig of 6 guns also resisted; transport No. 50 had a cargo valued at $60,000. Was finally captured by the Spartan, 38, in the Bay of Fundy, August 3, 1812, crew generally escaping to the shore.

Probably the same vessel as the above; had an encounter with the boats of a man-of-war, and beat them off with loss, in 1812.

Lost at sea in 1813; was only 44 tons burthen.

Burnt 1, ransomed 1, and made cartels of 2. This cruiser sailed from Portsmouth in Nov., 1814, and was absent at the close of the war.

Formerly the privateer Liverpool. Captured by the Fantonee, 18, at sea, Oct. 5, 1813.

Captured by the Acasta and company, after a chase of 100 miles. Returned from France, June 17, 1813. A beautiful vessel.

Captured by the Iris, after a chase of 13 hours, with her prize, April 13, 1813.

DURING THE WAR WITH GREAT BRITAIN, FROM 1812 TO 1815.

Sent the prizes into Southern ports. Was first commissioned with only 3 guns.

With 217 prisoners and 3698 tons of shipping, a portion of which were sent to Newfoundland in a brig. Burnt 7 of the prizes. See Action. The King's packet "John Bull," chased on shore on Crooked Island. This and No. 2 is probably the same cruiser.

Burnt 1. The prize ship Countess of Harcourt was armed with 6 guns and 90 men, including passengers.

Commission returned.

This prize carried 10 guns, and resisted until 4 of her erew were wounded. The S. A. was captured and earried into New Providence, October, 1812. One, a tender to the Dragon, 74, commanded by a lieutenant with 13 men; sunk both. Was absent at the close of the war.

Several armed and resisted; 2 wrecked, crew saved; 2 burnt, 1 sunk, 3 ransomed. The ship Quebec, 16 guns and 52 men, had a cargo valued at $300,000.

Burnt 3; cut out a brig of 16 guns from Demarara; made a tender of a Kingston packet. Was driven high and dry in a gale, at St. Mary's, September, 1813. Captured by the Employs, at sea, Aug. 25, 1812, when only a few days out.

The schooner was wrecked.

A cruise of 12 months in the North Sea; took 420 prisoners; sent several of the prizes to Norway. In an action with the T. Ship Mary, stilled their Captain and 2 men, and wounded 3. Absent at the close of the war. By one account a schr. of same tonnage carried 15 guns. Reported lost, with all on board. Supposed to have run under.

This cruiser was missing at the close of the war, or had not returned from her cruise.

Commissioned Dec. 17, 1812-tonnage 134.

Was at sea when peace was ratified. Reported to have been captured off Madeira, 1815. Was formerly the "William."

The "Loyal Sam," of 10 guns. Jan. 13, 1813, the Siro was captured, after a chase of 12 hours, by the Pelican, and recaptured by the U. S. Sloop Wasp, Capt. Blakely. Burnt four, ransomed one, and gave two to the prisoners. The cargo of one prize valued at $500,000. A Capt. O. Burns and N. Graham also commanded this cruiser.

Captured by three British Frigates, Dec. 12, 1812, after being completely riddled by their shot.

Three were released, being of little value—coast of Portugal. Cruiser afterwards altered to a Brig, of 5 guns. ?

Lost one man in an action with the Ship Aimwell, of 18 guns and 51 men, which she drove on shore off Surinam, after a resistance of 3 hours.

This eruiser was several times commissioned, with different armaments—her burthen 169 tons.

Commissioned Aug. 31, 1812-55 tons.

Ship Jane, of 20 guns-sent into New Orleans.

This eruiser was only 15 tons burthen.

Captured by the Superb, off Bellisle, Feb. 9, 1813.

Destroyed 14; dismasted 1; wrecked 1. This cruiser was also wrecked on our coast just after the war, and 15 of her crew drowned. Captured by the enemy's boats in York River, June 12, 1813; had five wounded. The enemy lost 3 killed and 6 wounded.

While in company with the Holkar, of Machias.

Captured by the Elephant, at sea, Dec. 28, 1812, only 12 days out. Was chased 11 hours, and threw overboard 10 guns.

Captured by the boats of the squadron, March 9, 1813.

Chased one on shore, and was herself chased on shore by the enemy, off the Delaware, Nov. 16, 1814, attacked, set fire to, and described.

Commissioned Jan. 11, 1813, and sent with despatches to the northwest coast.

Chased on shore by the Dragon, 74, near Cape Henry, and burnt, Jan., 1814. By the enemy's account she mounted 18 guns at the time.

Sent all but one in. This cruiser was finally captured by the Domingo, 74, and burnt, in December, 1812.

One ship of 12 guns, and two of 14 cach, with 25 and 30 men. When six days out, Sept. 29, 1813, off Cape North, was captured by the Nymphe, after a 34 hours' chase, and loss of 8 guns. Captured by the Eaglish squadron, when three weeks out, on her first cruise, Oct. 31, 1812.

Captured by the Magicienne, off St. Mary's, Jan. 18, 1813, after a chase of nine hours.

All armed. The Ship Braganza, of 12 guns, resisted 55 minutes—see, also, Action. April 27, 1813, was captured by the Lyra and company—armament having been reduced to 6 guns and 36 men.

Evidently the same vessel as the "Transit," above.

And 270 prisoners, in a cruise of 37 days, on the coast of Ireland and Scotland. Landed and took several places, and burnt seven other vessels. This cruiser was fitted out at Brest. Was finally captured and carried into Gibraltar.
 Burnt one, and released one with prisoners. Was six times chased by men-of-war of the enemy, and at one time surrounded.

Burnt-the Sloop Venus, of Jamaica.

The Privateer Retaliation, of 5 guns and 20 men, taken by surprise by this vessel, fitted out for the express purpose, and not commissioned.

B. and his aid; the Chesapeake not being in a state to resist, Capt. Barron surrendered his ship, and permitted 4 seamen to be taken out of her. One of these was subsequently hung as a deserter; one died in prison; and the remaining two were returned to the commanding officer at Boston, by a British lieutenant in command of H. B. M. schooner Bream, June 13, 1812, only 5 days previous to the declaration of war.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT.

THE FIRST LEGISLATION OF CONGRESS IN REGARD TO THE NAVY,

1775, Oct, 13, directed that one vessel of 10 guns, and another of 14 guns, be equipped as national eruisers. At the same time a law was passed establishing a "Marine Committee," consisting of Messrs. John Adams, John Langdon, and Silas Dean—the place of Mr. Adams being afterwards supplied by Mr. Gadsden. This Committee was chosen by Congress from their own members, and given control of all Naval matters.

Several changes and modifications followed, and in

- 1776, Nov., a "Continental Navy Board," consisting of three competent persons, was appointed subordinate to the above Committee. The latter was subsequently divided into an "Eastern Board," and "Board of the Middle District."
- 1779, Oct. 28. A "Board of Admiralty" was established, consisting of three commissioners, who were not in Congress, and two that were, who were given control of all Naval and Marine affairs.
- 1781, Feb. 7th. Alexander McDougall, a Major General, who had been a Seaman in his youth, was appointed "Secretary of Marine," with all the duties and powers previously confided to the Board of Admiralty.
- 1781, Aug. An "Agent of Marine" was appointed to supersede all Agents, Boards, or Committees, previously established by law. The duties of this office subsequently devolved on the "Superintendent of Financos," who was the celebrated Robert Morris.

Legislation here closed upon this branch of the service, until

- 1789, Aug. 7, when a law was passed placing the Navy under the control of the Secretary of War, where it remained until
- 1798, April 30, when a Navy Department was established at the Seat of Government, with a "Secretary of the Navy," (Benjamin Stoddert,) at its head; to which was added,
- 1815, Feb. 7, a "Board of Commissioners," composed of Captains of the Navy, subject to appointment by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate of the United States. In the place of this Board, the law of
- 1842, Aug. 31, established the following Bureaus, to be attached to the Navy Department:

ORGANIZATION OF 1842.

- 1. A Bureau of Navy Yards and Docks.
- 2. A Bureau of Construction, Equipment, and Repair.
- 3. A Bureau of Provisions and Clothing.
- 4. A Bureau of Ordnance and Hydrography.
- 5. A Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

For the Chiefs of these Bureaus the law specified that a Captain in the Navy should be appointed to the 1st and 4th; a skilful Naval Constructor to the 2d; a Surgeon in the Navy to the 5th; and the 3d was left open, with a proviso that the incumbent should receive a salary of $3,000 per aunum. In regard to the 2d*, Secretary Upshur remarks: "In providing a Chief for the Bureau of Construction, Equipment, and Repair, the alternative was between a Naval Captain qualified to equip, and a Naval Constructor qualified to build and repair;" and adds, "I did not hesitate to prefer the former, and the place is filled by a member of the late Board of Navy Commissioners."

An officer of this grade continued at the head of this Bureau, with a Naval Constructor and Chief Engineer attached to the same, until the 1st of July, 1853, when a subsequent law took effect, disqualifying a Captain for this position, and leaving it open for the Secretary of the Navy again to select from any other grade or position, "a skilful Naval Constructor." The result has finally been a selection of an old experienced Naval Constructor.

The 3d, or Bureau of Provisions and Clothing, was originally given to a Civilian, the former Secretary of the Board of Navy Commissioners; and at his death, to a Captain in the Navy; subsequently to a Citizen; and finally to a Purser in the Navy, who is the present incumbent.

^{*}Two Bureaus, in a spirit of economy, having been merged into one, without altering the original wording of the bilt contemplating a division into two, has created the legislation and change that has followed.

HISTORICAL AND COMPARATIVE.

History informs us that vessels were built, fleets organized, and naval battles fought for the supremacy of Empire six hundred years before our Saviour's advent upon earth.

Vessels, however, at this early period, and for the thousand years that followed, are represented as open boats or undecked vessels, varying from one to fifty tons, the larger only fitted with a mast, yard, and sail, which was used when the wind was fair; at other times they, like the smaller, were propelled by oars and paddles; one of the latter usually serving in the place of the modern rudder to guide or steer the vessel.

Without going farther back than our ancestors who peopled Albion during the Anglo Saxon period, we find that vessels were then classed as "Ships," "Ceols," "Hulks," "Ascs," and "Boats," which, to the number of several thousands, sometimes constituted the Navy of Great Britain. And as early as A. D. 875, was commanded in person by King Alfred, the "Sailor King," who led to victory against the Danes.

So early did Great Britain feel her supremacy upon the Ocean, (which to the present time she has enjoyed with but few checks,) that Canute, "who was elected King by the fleet" in 1014, seating himself upon the sea shore, and addressing the flowing tide with an air of authority, said: "Thou, O sea, art subject to me, as is the land on which I sit; nor is there any one therein who dare resist my commands."

Likewise, during the subsequent reign of King John, who is now, I believe, regarded as the actual founder of the British Navy, this idea of supremacy was confirmed by a law, passed A. D. 1200, enjoining every ship that met the King's fleet at sea to lower her sails; a custom that has not entirely gone out of fashion to this day.

During this period vessels were classed as "Great Ships," "Long Ships," "Galleys," "Sornecks," "Nascellas, or Navaculas," "Passerettes," "Coqs," and "Barges." And although the largest of these in the English Navy had but one mast, it appears that, but nine years previous, King Richard, while at the head of his fleet, and crossing the Mediterranean to Palestine, encountered, captured, and sunk a large Turkish ship of three masts, whose enormous dimensions very much excited the wonder and admiration of the English, some of whom called her a "Droman," and others a "Buss," and all agreed that she was not only a "marvellous ship," but the "Queen of ships." And inasmuch as she is represented to have had on board 1500 souls, she must have approached nearer to the size of modern built vessels than any that were constructed in England for many years subsequent.

Of the varied changes that have since taken place in the size, construction, rig, and classification of vessels, it is not intended here to discuss nor exemplify, further than has been demonstrated by these tables for a very brief period. Suffice it to say, that from the period last mentioned on to the present, ships have gone on increasing in size and perfection; their batteries, or number and calibre of their guns, keeping pace with their increased dimensions, and their models varying to suit the prevailing opinion of the age, until, by way of comparison, a line of battle ship at the present day may be regarded as superior in force to any of the ancient fleets.

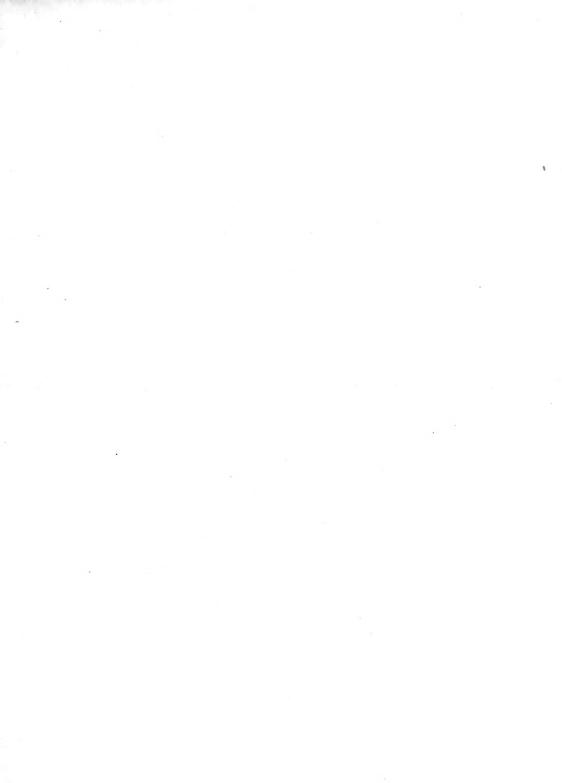

And yet it would be presumption in any of the present generation to suppose that we have yet arrived at any thing like perfection in the art of ship building; for it will hardly be questioned, that, during the comparatively brief period embraced in this compilation, in which we claim to have had a Navy, the greatest changes in ship building have been witnessed; while those who regard steam power as in its infancy, are looking forward to still greater changes in the next fifty years. Already it is proposed to build a steam vessel in New York that shall be 500 feet long by 80 feet beam, that will attain a speed of 30 miles per hour.
